

Company Logos

Our Company logo is registered trademark and, as such is a valuable asset for the business. Looking after the way we use it is, therefore, very important. If we don't follow the usage rules, it'll be impossible to protect it. And we only ever use it from approved master artworks. Using it correctly and consistently communicates our quality standards and ability to follow process, whilst keeping an eye on detail. So, make sure you understand and follow the rules carefully, it is your responsibility to use it correctly. Thefore, please read the brand guideline before using the company logo.

Company Logo Usage Rules

Clear space / inviolable space

This is the space around the logotype that must be kept free of other elements - logos, type, illustrations or any other graphic device. It is calculated by dividing the width of the logo into ten equal squares. One of these squares must always be maintained around the logotype. For most uses two squares are required beneath, except when it sits in a band on websites, emails or PowerPoint presentations, or when using the tagline version where just one is fine.

Clear space / Inviolable space

Minimum size

To make sure our logotypes are always legible we have defined minimum sizes for them. Never use them smaller than specified here. Our business card in the US is an exception to this rule where the logotype and strapline is slightly smaller, details are in the Business Card Guidelines.

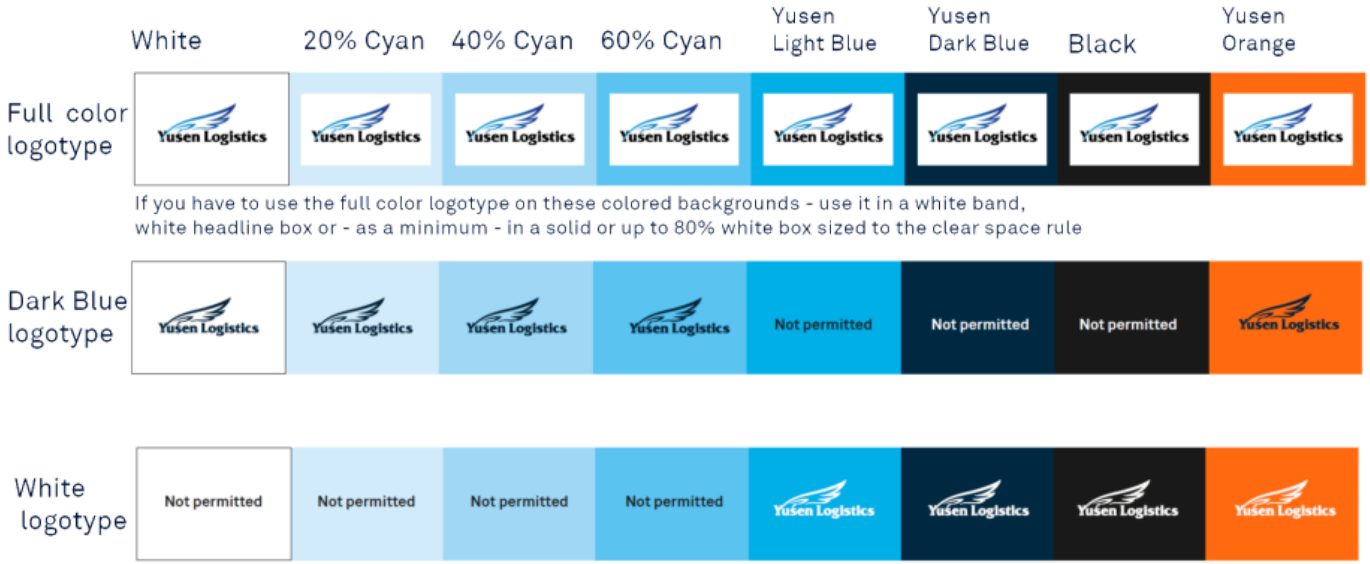

Background color

The only colors we use as backgrounds are white and tints of white down to 80%,

Yusen Dark Blue, black, Yusen Orange, Yusen Light Blue and 20%, 40% and 60% tints of cyan.

This chart shows the recommended logotype color for these background colors. Remember our Light Blue is an 80% tint of cyan, don't use cyan as a solid color.

On photos with tinted white box

When putting the logotype (both Full Color and Dark Blue) on photographs, they must be legible and maintain sufficient contrast between photo and logotype.

In case of insufficient contrast, logotype can be used on either a solid white box, or a tinted white box, tinted down to 80%.

Getting it wrong

Do not edit or recreate the logotype in any way. Always use the official artwork that has been provided. It is your responsibility to know and follow the rules to protect the logotype.

Do not use full color logotype on any colored background

Do not change the colors of the master logotype artworks Do not use any of our other colors

Do not elongate the logotype to fill a space

Do not use the symbol on its own

Do not substitute the logotype font

Do not distort the master artworks

Tagline: Usage rules - overall

The tagline should normally be set in, or out of Yusen Orange - this is because we always want it to stand out from other content, and our orange is a more energetic, dynamic, action orientated color.

For all versions, it is vital that the tagline is used only when we are presenting content or a point of view that is insightful. This may be from our experts and sales people at exhibitions, or for signing off text and an insightful point of view in advertising. When typesetting the tagline we use our two typefaces - GT Pressura Mono and Akkurat Bold.

1. Logotype and tagline lock-up

This is always used in GT Pressura Mono capital letters, and is locked up to the logotype in a specific way that cannot be altered.

2. Tagline sign off - sales collateral

This is always typeset in Akkurat Bold title case in Yusen Orange.

3. Tagline sign off - PowerPoint, and document sign off

This is always set in GT Pressura Mono capital letters. It can be used on a Light Blue or White background.

4. Tagline - white out of orange background

We can also print the tagline in white out of Yusen Orange in GT Pressura Mono capital letters.
